COLUMNDeparture South of Ball Players
Means Summer Is on Its Way.

Isn't exactly summer-to-day, but we all know summer is coming when the baseball men start South. McGraw is off for Texas to-morrow and Chance leaves for Bermuda to-day, each accompanied by an advance guard of players. The training trip won't take so very long, and the April 9, summer will begin in earnest with the first big league game.

What's winter good for, anyhow?

How much ink has been spilled around L. McCarty this week. One might almost think Luther was a champion.

This, however, is the last word. To-morrow let Lute, or Luke, or Luky, or back into the office whence he came. There's no more news in him.

Yesterday Luther's manager became somewhat worried over the extensive spinning handed Luther by the press all over the country. So he notified Bill Gibson that he might, in a week or so, come to New York to talk to William again about McCarty.

While McCarty was wiring, Gibson was telephoning around the country trying to locate him. He found the manager of the champion of Venice, Los Angeles, out in Columbus, O. Gibson had noticed various telegraphed denials in which McCarty was quoted to the effect that McCarty was matched with Wells.

"Yes," said McCarty when brought to the wire. "Well fight Wells for 40 per cent. of the receipts at the Garden."

Gibson informed McCarty that the Garden needed its foundation and Diana for future purposes and couldn't afford to give them away even to a McCarty. "You must just ask for 50 per cent," said Gibson.

McCarty reminded Gibson he would be in New York next Monday and would have another talk with him on the Wells matter. Then Gibson hung up the phone.

"Huh," said Gibson. "Now what you think of that? Next week, maybe, let him come next week. I won't be here. McCarty is in the discard as far as I'm concerned."

So we all of us. Let's forget the unpleasant spectacle of a much puffed and advertised American "champion" simply taking to his heels the moment an English champion and challenger lands on these shores.

The Motor Boat Show, opening to-day, will interest every one with a bit of the Viking in his veins.

Two followed these shows carefully, year after year. The improvement in gasoline motors and all sorts of motor boat devices has been astonishing. Only a few years ago there were a very few small engines, and a great many fine collections of scrap from called engines.

Now-day almost all motors are good. Some are better (and more expensive) than others, but they'll all run. There isn't one that you'd feel tempted to pull out of your boat after two or three porpoising days and leave over for a leaving.

The improvement in boats hasn't kept pace with the improvement. Very likely that's because boats have been built for centuries, and it didn't take long, when the gasoline engine came in, to build a fairly good hull to carry it. A number of boat companies, especially up in the New England States, turn out boats with a good deal of skill.

Down around New York the builders go in more for speed and polished mahogany. "Cigar boats" on a boat race, and this is where people spend it.

A BROOKLYN gentleman wants to know whether or not pistol shooting is an interesting sport.

It surely is, Brooklyn. It's one of the best indoor sports. There's nothing in the world better than target shooting with the pistol for developing steady nerves and a good eye. Moreover, the Constitution of the United States recognizes the fact that it is well for every citizen to know how to handle weapons. We don't keep up a vast standing army. We depend upon volunteers in case of emergency. In our former wars our success has been largely due to the fact that our officers were almost all hunters, accustomed to handling weapons and to shooting straight.

Ability to handle a revolver skillfully is almost as useful an ability to shoot straight with the rifle. And any good pistol shot is a good rifle shot. As for the usefulness of the revolver as a weapon of defense in your own home, it is far better than the unwieldy and unhandy rifle. Every citizen should know how to use a gun.

Of course, if you want to belong to a pistol club and practice, I suppose you must make some inquiry into legal requirements. In spite of the evident intention of the Constitution we have the Sullivan law, which is the best protection the burglars and footpads in this State ever had. The most convenient procedure for "framing" a police victim, and the greatest enemy of our defense, is an arm-handling pistol.

NOTES OF A PAID AMATEUR
BY BOZEMAN BULGER.

Now that the Giants are taking with them on their spring training trip a dentist, a barber, a chiropractor and a masseur, and the Highlanders are going to Bermuda with two chefs, waiters, a masseur and a bone-setter, it is left for Charley Murphy to go to them one better and have manicures who can double in a cabaret show as to keep the players from leaving their hotel in the evening.

Charley Ebbels says that he is satisfied with plenty of hard work, muscle and bone. This means, of course, that he will make no changes.

PLUGGING FOR THE MARLIN HOTEL.

If it becomes necessary for the Giant hotel to make any plates it will be unnecessary for him to carry along any moulding material. A bit into one of those famous K. C. steaks at Marlin will leave a perfect impression of the full set, upper and lower, that will last for weeks. We found some down there last spring that bore the monograms cut in them by the soldiers back in the sixties.

CONSOLATION FOR THE GIANTS.

A catastrophe was prevented in Danvers, Conn., by a fur muff freezing to the toe. The young lady who owned it while skating fell through the ice but managed to hold on to the muff until rescued. This is the first time that a muff has frozen prominently or favorably since the progress made that 50,000 one at Boston last fall.

AN ORDINARY DICTIONARY MIGHT HELP.

An editorial writer in the Boston Globe suggests that "the Baseball Writers' Association publish a grammar and dictionary of the baseball language." Presumably this native speaking gentleman had to have a translation when Tim Murnane told him how he could get a ticket for the World's Series.

MAKING HIM SOLID AT HEADQUARTERS.

An item in one of our evening contemporaries tells of a chauffeur running into an iron post without serious damage to either, and his subsequent arrest by Detective Ivory. Though no bones were broken the names of witnesses were secured. It looks to us as if this ought to be a hard case.

While this well known owner was on a vacation last summer the local paper up there referred to him as "A highly polished gentleman and well liked."

PLEASANT MEMORIES RECALLED.

Major Hefner, of Marlin, writes that the people down there have arranged an especial treat for the Giants on the day of their arrival in the way of moving pictures of the late world's series. This is certainly enterprise, but, somehow, there seems to be a doubt in our mind as to whether this will be such a pleasant reception.

HE'LL GET THAT WRITE-UP YET.

Despite public clamor the contracts of Harry McCormick and the Subway Captain, "To get in the papers" says Harry "one must be either the first or the last to slap the John Hancock on paper. The only trouble is that the Public Service Commission has been stealing my stuff." There is good news for McGraw, however, in the fact that Harry has bought a new evening suit for social functions at Marlin.

BUT THE KID MIGHT FOOL HIM.

Whitcomb Robinson, the veteran Giant coach, is taking his eighteen-year-old son along, and when asked the meaning of this rather unexpected departure from his custom said:

"Just to show him why he ought not to try and be a ball player."

Exodus of Ball Players

GOOD NIGHT, BASEBALL!
LATEST DEVICE MAKES UMPIRES INFALLIBLE.

Ban Johnson Interested in Invention That Will Call Balls and Strikes Perfectly.

If President Ban Johnson of the American League has his way fans this season won't see any fun at the expense of the umpire, and the good old game may go to the bow-wow. The reform league president, according to advices from Chicago to-day, is going to investigate the merits of an invention of a Bedford (Mass.) man, who claims he has a device that will make the umpire infallible on balls and strikes. The idea of the invention is patterned after the telescope. Running the game by machinery, as it were.

President Johnson, after receiving a letter from the Bedford inventor, was very much impressed with the possibility of the new device. If the new-fangled arrangement proves all its owner claims for it the American League president said he would adopt it for all the league's games this season.

400 Athletes Entered
In the Columbia Games

Representatives of Eighteen Colleges to Take Part in To-Night's Big Meet.

The Columbia University games at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory to-night promise to be the best held in this city this year. More than four hundred prominent athletes will compete in the different events. Among them are representatives of eighteen colleges and universities.

While the intercollegiate relay races, in which the fastest college runners in the country will compete, are carded as the feature, it is the Baxter mile that promises to furnish the best competition.

For this race seven of the greatest milers in the country have entered. They are Abel Kiviat, the champion of the Irish-American A. C., Oscar Hedlund of the Boston A. C., who smashed the one-mile record at the N. Y. A. C. games last Wednesday; Norman Taber of Brown University, who ran a dead heat with John Paul Jones in the intercollegiate championships last year; James Powers, the New England champion; William Kramer, the cross-country king of the Long Island A. C.; Matt Gels of the Seventy-first Regiment and John Paul Jones of Cornell.

These men have been training hard for several weeks for this event and all are reported to be in good condition. Experts predict that a new army record will be established by the winner.

Besides the relay and the Baxter mile a dozen other events will be decided. In each of them a score of athletes will compete, including many collegiate title holders.

At the Eighty A. C. for a week, William is really run to most, and the team will take place next Wednesday night.

Jim Griffin, the popular sporting man of San Francisco, who is now coaching the team of this college in that city, has been reported to be in the city for the intercollegiate relay races, in which the fastest college runners in the country will compete, are carded as the feature, it is the Baxter mile that promises to furnish the best competition.
